Induction of The Rev. W. H. Muncester

The formal induction of Rev. W. H. Muncester, M. A., B. D., into the First Presbyterian church, of Blairmore, took place on Wednesday afternoon, when a goodly number of the members and adherents of the church were present. Among the ministers present were Revs. Boyle, of Macleod; Wycheley and Lang, of Pasburg; T. M. Murray, of Coleman, and mission superintendent, Dr. Ferguson.

An able sermon was preached by Dr. Ferguson, after which, Rev. Mr. Murray made a few introductory remarks, relating to steps followed leading up to the call of Rev. Mr. Muncester to the pastoral charge of the Blairmore Presbyterian church.

The induction charge was delivered by Rev. Mr. Boyle, after which the newly installed pastor received congratulations from these present.

The concluding part of the ceremony was adjourned till 7:30, when the newly inducted pastor was addressed by the Rev. James Lang. Rev. Mr. Murray was next called upon to address the congregation and delivered an able talk from the words "Do Your Duty."

Rev. Mr. Bryan, of Lethbridge, who was to have been present to assist in the ceremony, at the Blairmore's proceedings, arrived on the "local" at 8:30, and reached the church just before the close of the meeting. He was called upon for a few remarks after which the benediction was pronounced.

Blairmore Mine Fan Destroyed By Fire

The town of Blairmore was aroused late Sunday night by an alarm of fire and examination disclosed the fact that the large fan house and fan in the mountain south of the mine was ablaze. However the fire was too far away to be reached and in a few minutes the fan house which was about 50x20 feet, together with the large fan was completely demolished. The fan was installed about a year ago at which time the house was also erected over it.

The loss to the West Canadian Collieries is considerable, but we understand it will not seriously interfere with the workings of the mine.

The R. N. W. M. P. Yearly Record

The annual report of the mounted police shows that they were instrumental in entering no less than 43,391 cases. This, considering the small total of the number of the force, is very satisfactory work. The result is, encouraging in view of the criticism which the corps has lately received owing to the action of a few of its units, as was the case in Regina.

The record shows a large activity, and serves to proclaim the usefulness of this time-honored body of men in the detection of crime. If some of the charges lately laid against the force were true, it would be impossible for the work done to make such a good showing. It is evidence that taken of a whole, the R. N. W. M. P. deserves the confidence which has

Bachelors Beat The Married Men

On Wednesday afternoon, the fresh and spry bachelors of Blairmore met up against the feeble and bugged "sponsors" in a hockey match on the Blairmore rink. The game afforded more fun than enough and kept the referee and judges a-going to find where the greenhorns got their justification for the many new tricks and pranks made use of by them.

One daring venture was that of a bachelor, amid all the hairbreadth escapes of his lifetime, who made his way up the rink towards the net which was protected more impenetrably than even the "rainbow," and on arriving within six feet of the buttress, left the rubber and landed himself head up in the net. Meanwhile goal-keeper Brisco was sailing back towards where the upturned right-wing had started to stray. Some of the bachelors desired to claim a foul, but the married men objected, stating that a "furtle" was no foul.

The skate on Alex. Morency's spare foot became loosed during the second period, and of all the married bunch the only least touched with sympathy was that possessed by Frank Hinds. With all the love and affection of a father, Frankie rushed to Bro. Morency's assistance, and a game leader in all his sufferings, by rubbing his skate with a piece of soft ice.

Schofield was up against it once. He ran into Mayor Lyon and could not get any further. Referee Paul declared equal honors.

Bro. Bigelow was somewhat at a disadvantage for a time but the application of a few hockey sticks to his back soon brought him around.

One goal shot by Danny Lewis was disputed on the grounds of professionalism, it being claimed that Dan had bet the cigars with Louis Gales.

Doc Baker went up to Brisco once with the puck. Brisco told him to go 'way, he didn't want any of 'em there. Baker wouldn't go down there any more—he just shot the puck in the goal at thirty yards.

The game ended with a score of 7-5 in favor of the bachelors.

R. O. Green was official time keeper, while Harry Paul acted as referee.

The winners have decided not to play the Vancouver "Tigers" till June, but will in the mean time endeavor to swell the fund intended to purchase the tin cup (a fitting trophy) from the Blairmore Hardware Co. They also purpose playing the Coleman league team if sufficient inducements are offered.

The lineups were: Bachelors—Schofield, Pinkney, Irwin, Baker, Bartlett, Lewis and Roy; Married—Lyon, Brisco, Hinds, Morency, Bigelow, Campbell and Shera.

been placed in it for so many years. For the welfare of the prairie province it is to be trusted that each member of the force will not fail to remember the glorious traditions of the corps to which he belongs. But with the record shown there is not much need for any apprehension in this regard.

League Game Results in Victory For Faank

In one of the best hockey games of the season Blairmores went down to defeat on the local ice on Tuesday night in a score of 6 to 1 in favor of Frank.

In the first twenty minutes the Frank boys scored three goals, while Blairmore reported a blank sheet.

Starting on the second 20 minutes, the "white hope" of the Blairmores became disabled, necessitating about ten minutes' delay. After resumption the Frank net received a visit from the puck. This was closely followed by two goals in succession for Frank.

C. Lewis and Bob McGowan held a little spat, when the former was felled for hitting McGowan with the stick.

Some foul play was practised for a time by members of both teams, as a result of which several were put out of commission for short periods and Bob McGowan received a nasty gash under the ear which necessitated treatment by Dr. Mackay.

The last twenty minutes proved undoubtedly the superior strength of the Frank aggregation, and ended with one more addition to the visitors' score.

The lineups were as follows:
Blairmore—A. Ford, H. Paul, C. Lewis and W. Turner.

Frank—H. D. Mackay, R. McGowan, W. Scott, D. Dunlop, G. Grace, R. Merrice and E. Shera.

The attendance was the largest ever known at a league match in this district, and if the team were not encouraged rooters were not to blame.

The ice was in excellent condition and the weather was all that could be desired, and leaving all jokes aside, every reasonable observer could not but admire the excellent play of the majority of the Frank team.

After the senior game the Blairmore juniors entered to try conclusions with the juniors of Coleman. This game also proved interesting and resulted in a score of 3 in favor of Blairmore.

Blairmore Gives Coleman Clean Sheet

On Wednesday night the Coleman team visited Blairmore to cross sticks for the second time this season. A good game resulted, in fact all through the cleanest play of the season. The ice was in fair condition and the players did not appear to be lacking any of the necessary vim.

The game started out with Blairmore leading and ended with Blairmore holding a score of 11 against a blank sheet for the visitors.

The game was played under the most favorable conditions, and after the finish of the second period the Coleman boys were so discouraged that they even expressed a desire to bribe the suppliers of "juice" to limit the big record of their opponents.

Charlie Higgins filled the important position of goal keeper for Coleman, and through his good headedness very few invasions of the puck were rejected.

Brisco was there like a lion, and warded off a number of well-directed shots.

SAVED BY STRIKING MATCH

Thrilling Rescue of Aeronauts From Sinking Balloon in English Channel

To be blown out to sea and nearly drowned in a sinking balloon, in mid-channel, and then to be rescued just in time by lighting a match, of which he possessed but three—was a distressing experience that has befallen two aeronauts, Arthur Turner and Mr. Nolan of the Royal Aero Club.

The two men met with their perilous adventure while flying in their balloon, the Norther, from London to Eastbourne, whence they hoped to fly across the channel.

They set out from Battersea about noon under favorable conditions intending to come down on the Eastbourne sands. The balloon rose to a height of 3000 feet.

Travelling swiftly with the wind, they descended near Buxted, and were told that they were thirty miles from the coast. The wind had then dropped and, as they wished to proceed, they threw out some ballast and again rose about 4000 feet.

After travelling for some time they heard a sound which they thought was that of the surf. A dead silence followed and a little later they saw what they believed to be the Royal Sovereign lightship. Darkness came on and with it a thick fog and rain.

The envelope of the balloon became soaked and they began to sink, and to their horror, the aeronauts found they could not make it rise.

Two hours, as the balloon sank more and more, they shouted their loudest without avail.

The balloon continued to sink until it was only about 50 above the water. Still they continued, but although several steamers passed quite close to them, they could make nobody hear.

At last, when all had but resigned themselves to their fate, they saw a light 300 or 400 yards away, which as they later discovered, came from some fishermen who were putting out nets. The fishermen could not hear them, and the aeronauts, as a last resource, bethought them of striking matches.

Great Storms of Modern Times

The recent destruction caused by a hurricane to the island of Jamaica has powerfully affected the popular imagination. Fortunately for us, these catastrophes are rare. When they do occur it is commonly observed that they are confined to certain areas, and that, therefore, special peoples are more singularly attacked. The supposition is in this phenomenon of nature nothing other than special judgments of the Almighty, while the practical-minded see only the occurrence of fixed laws.

While this is in mind, therefore, it may be interesting to recall to mind other notable storms of a disastrous nature. Few middle-aged people can forget the terrible night in 1873 when the Tay Bridge, a huge structure of steel wickerwork near the estuary of the Tay at Dundee, Scotland, was swept by a tremendous gale, blowing at the rate of 150 miles an hour, and precipitated in the water. This itself would have been a dreadful blow to the structure, but the high tide of the evening, considered to be an imperishable monument to the genius of man. But dreadful to relate, a train journeying from Edinburgh to Aberdeen, was plunging its way through the storm in the very middle of the structure and along with six hundred yards out of the two miles of steel framework was hurled into the Tay. No one lived to record the dread experience.

An older generation will doubtless remember the terrible series of hurricanes of 1853, which swept over Central Europe, devastating everything exposed to it and leaving wreck and ruin behind. Peculiarly enough it did not proceed far west. Obeying the law, it spent its force somewhere in mid Atlantic, and America and Canada were saved the havoc that might have befallen them.

Old country people resident in Canada will remember the hurricane that swept over England on the 14th of October, 1881, when houses were thrown down and unroofed, large trees torn up by the roots like playthings, telegraph wires and poles blown down, and in addition to a great loss of life, about 150 British wrecks of shipping.

In the same year, and peculiarly enough in the same month, followed what is commonly regarded as the great hurricane of history. In Haifong, in China, a typhoon broke out, raged for days and carried off to their doom the staggering total of 300,000. Doubt was at first cast on this total, but a subsequent census revealed its accuracy. Then two years later, a tornado in the Southern States carried off 600 people, followed in 1885 by a cyclone on the Orissa coast, Bengal, India, in which 5,000 people perished.

A storm, which was attended with a tidal wave nearly blotted out Wellington, New Zealand, in 1888, and to come nearer home, Ontario and Quebec were the scenes of storms of wind accompanied by thunder, in the same year, which cost three provinces $2,000,000. One could go on multiplying instances innumerable but the recent event in Jamaica prompts one to recall the cyclone there in 1903, when the British government granted a large sum to rehabilitate and restore the condition of the planters.

I will, she exclaimed—"I will not live with you another day. You'll leave me, will you?" he calmly asked.

"Yes, I will. When?"

"I wouldn't if I were you. But I will and I defy you to stop me."

"Oh, I shan't try to stop you, he quietly replied. I will simply report to the police that my wife has mysteriously disappeared. They'll want your description, and I will give it. You wear No. 8 shoes; you have an extra large mouth; your nose turns up at the end; eyes rather on the glint; voice like—"

"Wretch, you wouldn't dare do that!" she screamed.

I will. They glared at each other for a moment in silence. Then it was plain to see who was the victor.

A Good Scheme

A Woman's Perception Was Required to Defeat It

By EDWARD C. LONG

"There are a number of problems before the counterfeiter," said my friend Roberts, the detective, "but the most important of all is distributing the bills after they are made. All sorts of devices are resorted to in order to get the stuff in circulation. Persons are roped in by being offered an enormous price for something they own, and when they get their pay find that the money they have received is counterfeit. In such cases the transaction is usually a ruse, and when it is completed the rascal disappears without leaving any trace. Of methods whereby the bills are put into circulation in a small and continuously a case that fell into my hands a few years ago is about the best example I ever met with."

"I was sent to a haphazard who had reported some five dollar bill counterfeits on his bank's circulation. Every now and again a lot of these bills would appear, be absorbed and afterwards another lot would find their way into the hands principally of shopkeepers. The only clue that anybody had was that an old man, who went into a drug store and, after looking carefully over some toothbrushes, bought one, paid for it with a five dollar bill and received $4.70 in change. "The clerk had received through a customer, who was beyond suspicion, one of these same bills before we had been pronounced a counterfeiter and was suspicious of this one. But instead of refusing it he gave the man his change and sent a boy after him to see where he went. While the boy was gone the clerk took the bill he had received to the bank, where it was pronounced counterfeit. The boy saw the old man who had passed it off into a certain house, then returned to the drug store and reported the fact. A watch was set upon the house, but the man who had gone in there was not seen to come out or again enter it."

"This is the point at which I took the case. It may be supposed that my first move would be to call at the house on some pretext and find out who lived there. Any such act might stand against me in the future. Instead, I rented a room opposite the suspected premises, where from a window I could keep it under constant surveillance, and spent many an hour watching it. Several times I sat up till daylight in the morning hoping I might see some suspicious circumstance. An elderly woman lived in the house, who, I learned, was a widow with two or three little children. She did not appear to have any lodgers, though there was a card in a window, 'Room to Rent.' I saw one or two persons who were passing look at the card, ring the bell, enter and come out, but during my watch the room was not hired."

"One day I received notice that a counterfeit bill had been passed at a meat store, another at a grocery and still another at a hardware store. Indeed, the reports of the passing of these bills came in from all over the city. One of the persons on whom they were passed had submitted to be victimized in order to catch the perpetrator. Not being sure that the bill was counterfeit, he had turned to the manager at that pursued by the drug clerk. The person who had offered the bill was a woman. She had been followed, and the house she entered was watched. But she was not seen making an exit, nor did she ever again appear to the watcher or any one else concerned."

"When I had gathered these additional facts I felt sure that I had met with conditions that would be very difficult to unravel. And yet I expected that more than one person was engaged in showing the counterfeits, and the more persons possessing a secret the more difficult it is to keep it. One day the president of the bank whose bills were counterfeited received an anonymous note written in a feminine hand that if he would send to such a street and number he might be afforded a clue to the counterfeiter. The note was turned over to me, and I read it in it in person. I was received by a young woman, who told me that a man in a house directly opposite to the one in which she lived had excited her suspicions. But she could give no reason for this except that he appeared to have no business."

"It is worth to let it be known that I was a detective working up a case. I would get a multitude of clues every day, and each clue would be more ridiculous than its predecessor. Nevertheless in this case the girl seemed to be so positive that there was something wrong about the man opposite that I concluded to investigate. The best way to do this was to transfer my quarters to the house she lived in."

"It was an apartment house—and set up a watch. One of the flats was vacant, and I rented a front room in it. "I had observed the man opposite but a few times before I could understand the girl's suspicion. But I could give no reason for mine than she could for hers. She was quite attractive, and I made the case a pretext to call upon her often. I talked to her about it a good deal, but did not confine myself to it exclusively. She was much pleased to be consulted by a detective, and encouraged her to help me. She said that about once in two weeks the man opposite snatched forth as though he was intending to accomplish something. She had noticed this, because at other times when he went out he did so listlessly and as though time hung heavily on his hands. I asked her to know the next time she saw him go out in an energetic mood and try to notify me in time to enable me to follow him."

"Not long after this she knocked at my door and told me our quarry had just gone out, appearing to have a purpose. I ran downstairs and caught sight of him turning a corner. He soon entered a stationery store, where he bought some articles. I followed him into the store, for I knew that if he was a criminal he would be suspicious of every one he met. My purpose was to note the store he was in and if he passed counterfeit money. If he did his game was up, for I could arrest him where he lodged."

"He visited various stores, buying something in each, then instead of going to his lodging, entered a house where several families were quartered. He concluded to wait for him to come out, but he never did come out—that is, so far as I could see. While I was waiting for him several persons entered and came out of the house, but not my man. After waiting for some time I telephoned for a person to follow me and visited the store at which the man had made purchases. In every store he had passed a counterfeit bill."

"I resumed my watch on his lodgings, but, although I continued it for a week, I never saw the fellow again. "By this time the young lady who had given me the clue had become much interested in the case. She sympathized with me in my defeat and was anxious to do something to help me. I could not afford to spend more time watching the house where the counterfeiter lived. I learned that he had simply lodged there, and the occupants knew nothing of his presence. The young woman volunteered that if she saw him there again she would attempt to shadow him, and if possible arrest him with me. We agreed to do so. It was evident that he was one of several persons who were showing the counterfeit money, but I had no clue to his whereabouts. He was therefore no better off than before."

"The fellow went back just once to the house in which he had lodged to get some clothes and left to come, and the young woman happened to see him. She followed him and caught him on one of his rounds getting rid of spurious bills. After sniffing around the store he went to a house where he disappeared as before. His shadow waited from 10 o'clock in the morning till 4 in the afternoon for him to come out. Then a woman emerged, carrying a parcel and a reticule. The shadow, who had for weeks seen the man opposite go and come, had no sooner seen the woman walk than she recognized in the peculiar gait him whom she was looking for. She followed, looking about her for a policeman, but these gentlemen have a convenient way of not appearing when they are wanted, and the party turned into a building before she could get a cog."

"There was a store opposite and, luckily, a telephone in the store. The young woman called the police and explained why she wanted a policeman. She said in sufficient numbers to surround the store, then went upstairs to the top story, where they found not only the man in woman's clothes, but the whole gang of counterfeiters and their tools. In the reticule was considerable genuine money he had brought for dividends among them."

"He had been the only one engaged in passing the queer. After doing a bit of this work he would enter a house and come out as some one else. He had not been the feminine intuition of my volunteer assistant and her keen perception in recognizing his gait he might have continued his work, so no one knows how long."

"I was so pleased with the young woman's detective instincts that I invited her to go into partnership with me. We went out as usual, but I gathered that we finally concluded to make a life arrangement of it. "In all my experience I have never met with a better scheme for overhauling counterfeiters than the one I have described."

CHILDISH COSTUME.

Simplicity, Yet Richness, in This Fur Coat.

OF HOLMES AND MENDEL.

The little coat of mink is matched by a babyish bonnet, and both are trimmed with bands of ermine. A fine ermine must complete the furry dainties of this small girl.

Buttons boots are worn by all children in the street, and the pictured boots are of white buckskin with ribbed stockings of heavy white silk.

Hints Worth Remembering.

An excellent way to prevent clothes from freezing to the clothesline is to dip a cloth in strong salt water and wring it out.

To restore a waterproof coat dissolved a handful of best gray lime in half a pailful of water, and with this solution wipe the coat at the hardened parts. This should be done at intervals of about four hours. After this treatment a hardened waterproof will be as useless for years as before.

The frames of old umbrellas or parasols can be used very artistically for creepers in a garden. Just open them, strip off the silk, sharpen the handles to a point and thrust them open into the ground.

Modish, Yet Very Simple.

The catenary cut is really not a style suitable for the very young girl, but the pretty little costume pictured is no exception to this sartorial rule. English woven in brown and green mixture is the fabric used, and the cutaway effect is very chic on a slender young girl who carries herself gracefully.

The skirt is, of course, short enough to show the black buttoned walking boots of black patent leather with dull kid uppers.

The Grits Ball.

No, you don't dance it.

Neither do you throw it.

Nor is it designed to eat.

The shell is made of aluminum.

The round perforations admit the breeze.

One cup of grits or rice is held in it.

The grits ball opens on a hinge just as does a tea ball.

It is handier and looks slier than an ordinary ball.

THE DIFFERENCE.

What He Said Before Marriage and Afterward.

He had called her the light of his life. A few months ago he had sworn that he couldn't live without her; that he needed her to rule over his home and guide his destinies.

"Daring," he said enthusiastically, "I will go to the ends of the earth for you. What you say, that will I do; what you do, that will I prize. Hand in hand we shall wander down the lanes of time smiling and happy."

And the other night, in the presence of witnesses, he said:

"Well, for goodness sake, aren't you ever going to learn anything? Are you going to be a dub all your life? How many times have I told you not to do a thing like that? Use your brains; better than that you're doing. You know better than that, and if you don't you ought to. If a nine-year-old child asked that way I'd spank him. You make me tired, good and tired, you do!"

And all because she had trumped his ace and they needed an extra trick.

Dangerous Talk.

"Mother, I wish you wouldn't mention disabbling when George is calling on me."

"Why not, indeed?"

"I don't like it. It sounds common."

"Common, eh? We have to eat, don't we?"

"Of course."

"And George knows we eat and use dishes?"

"That's very true."

"And George also knows that dishes have to be washed, therefore someone has to wash them?"

"But, mother—"

"What now?"

"If you keep on talking about it George may discover that you make father wipe them, and he may think the same thing is coming to him if he should propose to me!"—Fun Magazine.

Prepared For Him.

"This is the opportunity of a life-time, madam," declared the smooth tongued canvasser as he stood at the door.

"Seems to me I've heard that before," thought the housewife.

"Opportunity knocks at every one's door, but only once," continued the canvasser.

"That's where you're mistaken, young fellow," snapped the woman as she reached behind her. "Opportunity has knocked at my door eight times this year, but I've never taken it."

"You're right, just in case he should knock again I have been saving this kettle of hot soup!"

"Yes," said the canvasser, departed hurriedly.

Out at the Pits.

A young bookkeeper on a visit to New York, thought to impress his New York friends by putting up at a fashionable hotel. Of course he couldn't afford it, and he had to economize in various ways to make ends meet.

He happened on one occasion to be taking his evening meal on a bench in the park when a young man and his sister, friends of his, passed in an automobile.

The youth bent his head over his sandwich, but the New York saw him and shouted:

"Hello, George! Dining out again, you say?"—St. Paul Dispatch.

Suspicious.

"John, do you love me?"

"Yes."

"Do you adore me?"

"I adore."

"Will you always love me?"

"Yes—look here, dear, what have you been and gone and ordered sent home now?"—San Francisco Examiner.

BRIBERY.

I had her dainty hand.

She drew it out away.

I was staid much.

Because she let it stay.

My arm went round her waist.

She drew it out away.

I thought with her I'd made

One big, terrible day.

I kissed her on the lips.

She looked at me and sighed.

I thought I had her won,

But now her actions lied.

For when I said "Good by"

She slipped into my hand.

Her car.

Edmonton Suffers

Edmonton has been a heavy sufferer through fires during the past ten days, and the toll of death and destruction during that time was the worst in the history of the capital. Low water pressure was in a great measure accountable. On Friday last the large five-story building of the Consolidated Rubber Company was completely destroyed, together with several buildings adjoining, totalling a loss of over $250,000. One of the walls tumbled on an Italian boarding house nearby, killing five of the occupants, one woman, three men and a child, the charred remains of whom were afterwards recovered from the smouldering ruins.

Another word about the situation: the risk is in the bottom of a small valley with rising land all around thus making it possible for hundreds of people to witness any sports that may be held. The principle adopted by at least one team in the Pass, of roping in the fifty cents and turning you loose in a crowded rink where it is impossible to even see the ice, is courting financial disaster. Anything like this could not take place in Burns.

L. C. Stevens has commenced mining classes in Burns and we wish him every success. He has qualifications that fit him for this class of work particularly as we understand that he is not only a first-class mining man but has done a considerable amount of mechanical and electrical work, the latter are becoming more and more prominent in up to date mining and students will do well to arrange to take a "course".

The noble Bigie, much's thoroughbred has changed hands and hence forth it will occupy the training quarters of Wm. Cook.

W. J. Lathbury is also developing into a horse dealer having sold his stand-by to the coal company. We understand he made a good profit less $5.00 for buying the horse brought in.

The order of Gozzuks met as usual and the President on rising said:

"That it appeared as though the Bellevue correspondent has not only wilfully misconstrued a statement made by me but gone so far as to insinuate that I tried to make out that the boys of Bellevue were parasites. During several animated discussions that have taken place between the Hillcrest Correspondent and this society, a gentlemanly spirit has prevailed and I'm sure that a comment on the systems in vogue at getting away money is not and could not be taken by any sensible and reasonable man as an insinuation of the sporting proclivities of the boys of Bellevue."

We recollect during the last two seasons many instances on the football field that will always cause a warm spot in our hearts for Bellevue and this anyone who knows the Pass will readily understand.

Let the Bellevue Correspondent get up and say right out what junk he is peddling and let him understand right here that a man can be both a sportsman and a regular without being fool enough to listen to the bandwagons of any Tom, Dick and Harry and get caught for a sucker.

Asked by a member as to who Jack Wickstorn of Burns was replied that as a writer he was unknown in Burns. That it appeared as though some hockey game was being worked in case Mr. Wickstorn of Burns wished to hold his title without question he had better come down here and clean this camp up.

Question as to whether it is correct that Joe Gradison sells such good beer that a trier of it develops quite a head and often gets drunk, member fined six bits for contempt.

Secretary to write Laurier offering him a few Burns lots for investment of government funds if he can get any.

We are of the opinion that by the time he gets our Canadian sailors and Canadian shipbuilders all line up and his schemes through, these lots will readily sell at a figure large enough to purchase his men of war.

The recent cold spell has served us very well, is effectually completing the skating rink.

For situation it has anything in the Pass beaten and is a larger rink than that at Hillcrest. B. Rawlenson agrees on organizing a hockey team.

Annual Meeting Of

Trustees Association

Good News For

Homesteaders

By far the biggest piece of news given out this year and which will be received by the people of the West with the utmost joy is the announcement from Ottawa of the latest change in the homestead and pre-empt law. The Calgary News Telegram in its issue of January 8th contains the following interesting account: The recent change allows a man to secure his pre-emption land without actually living on his homestead, providing his homestead duties have been fulfilled. Formerly the law called for a man who had a homestead to continue upon it, even though he had concluded his actual homestead duties in order to retain his pre-emption. That meant that he had to stay on his homestead until the duties relating to his pre-emption were fulfilled. Such a law might require a homesteader to hold his original quarter for almost double the period called for in the homestead law in order to retain his pre-empted land.

By the new arrangement, a homesteader who has put in the necessary residence and qualified with his improvements, may receive his patent and sell or dispose of the quarter as he desires, regardless of whether his pre-empt-ed land duties are completed or not.

The letter of advice received from the Dominion Law Office says that in view of the recent change in the regulations, pre-emption entries will now be handled without reference to the question of whether or not the holder thereof continues to own his pre-empted homestead.

Shooting Affair

At Bellevue

The inhabitants of the bush
part of Bellevue were awakened out of their sleep on Monday night by the sound of rifle shots.
It appeared that a Russian man and his wife had a quarrel and the woman got the worst of the deal, getting some of her teeth knocked out and her face badly mutilated. She came down, accompanied by her brother who went to the hotel for help, when the police and some of the men in and around the hotel went up to capture the husband. When they arrived they were welcomed by a volley of shots from a 22 rifle.
One of the bullets hit one of the men named Thomas Wright and penetrated into his thigh. He was taken to the hospital, where the bullet was extricated by Dr.
MacKenzie, after which the police made another attempt to get the man, but could not get inside the house. One of the men came out and was called upon to come forward, but would not obey, with the result that he received a bullet in the calf of the leg. The police and helpers waited for a while, till the woman came back, having had her wounds attended and bandaged up, and went into the house. She was followed in by the police, who made an attempt to get at her husband, and it was after a long and tedious struggle with the assistance of the woman that the enraged man was brought out of the house.
When they got him out, the woman sent a shower of pans, pots kettles and such odds, at the party to whom she had not long before cried for help.

The man was taken to the police station, where he awaits trial on a charge of attempted murder.

For a big fancy dress carnival to be held on the Blairmore rink
on Saturday night, February 1st.
Suitable prizes will be awarded and good music will lend a pleasing effect to the programme.

Owing to lack of "light juice," Monday's hockey game between Frank and Blairmore on the local rink was postponed. A large number of rosters from Frank and Bellevue were on hand, and their disappointment was really regrettable.

Oscar Mortimer, the well-known heavy-weight pugilist, was in town this week. Mortimer is matched for a bout to take place at Cranbrook early in February, and is open to challenge any heavy-weight in the Western provinces.

The Fernie hockey team journeyed to Tiber this week, where they were defeated in a score of 5-3. Wallace, of the Fernie team was slightly injured, and in consequence could not attend the Blairmore-Sherman game at Calgary.

On Saturday night last Chink-dom was raided by the police, who hoped to unearth a wholesale gambling programme. However, they were evidently too late and only managed to disturb their peaceable smoking. Eleven of the celestial tribunal were taken in charge by three police and placed in the cage, while one other defied vigilance and crept through a back window of the shack. The charge of smoking and having opium on the premises was preferred against them, and the case which was to have been heard at 2 o'clock on Monday, adjourned till Thursday forenoon, when the case came up before Justice Belcher, Colin Macleod appearing for the defence. Six were convicted and fined, one $50 and costs and five $500 and costs. The others were allowed to flitter away.

Frank Notes

Mrs. W. T. Young returned from Edmonton on Tuesday night.

The members of the local hockey team are all wearing skates longer than today and tomorrow, while the province of Alberta is not broad enough to accommodate the faces of the big bunch of rosters who went to Blairmore on Tuesday to see their boys triumph in one of the best fought hockey games of the season.

The hockey match between the Sanatorium and Frank hotel resulted in a score of 5-4 in favor of the Sanatorium. The game was a good one and was witnessed by a big crowd of rosters. Several of the players could skate, and report had it that a few of them identified a piece of rubber on the ice as a real puck.

When you want a reliable medicine berlain's Cough Remedy. It can always be depended upon and is pleasant

ROBE RING-POINT CALKS

Improved Tool-Steel Centers
None so sharp at first, none stay sharp so long, and last so long. It's the steel blade that makes a good knife.
It's the FULL LENGTH TOOL STEEL
CENTER that makes Ring-Point Calks.
You can use detachable calks with wheels in the center. When the wheel drops out, the calk wears out, and you're out of pocket. The steel center of Ring-Point Calks stays in till worn out.
It's made in the shape of a wedge, and driven up by striking stones in the road.
It cannot work down, because the hole is held by the wedge. Ring-Point Calks cost less because they save most. You pay but once and have sharp calks always.
Don't throw money on the ground and lose it. Don't use old-time bar calks.
Don't use center-drop out wire filed calks. Get your money's worth by using Ring-Points—the ones that never know a dull moment. See us about them today.
